ON DEMAND SESSIONS

Available starting Sunday, July 11 at 9:00am PDT

Corrosion Growth Analysis and Visualization Using ArcGIS Pro

Pipeline corrosion growth analysis is a spatial analysis problem that has not leveraged the power of GIS, until now. Using an Inline Inspection tool (ILI) an operator can get a detailed snapshot of the internal and external corrosion, dents, bending strain and location of the pipeline. This process compares two ILI snapshots over time to trend corrosion growth. This presentation will describe a new use for GIS for corrosion growth and analysis and visualization of ILI data in ArcGIS Pro.

Leverage Core Tools for Small Pipeline Operator Risk Management

Local gas distribution companies are faced with increasing scrutiny as regulators extend safety measures to all levels of operations. We'll provide an overview of implementing a UPDM-based GIS for asset management in small utility clients that's extended to provide affordable platform for risk and compliance reporting. This solution enables full DOT Class, MCA and HCA analysis; NPMS and T4 report generation; annual reporting; and semi-quantitative risk modeling driven off a single UPDM database.

Neal O'Driscoll – CHA Integrated Solutions

Pipeline Logging Made Easy

Pipeline 'pigging' is vital to pipeline safety, operational efficiencies, and financial success. By creating an application using Survey123 and QR Codes, we reduced human resource hours at the pipeline facilities, reduced reporting times, improved record-keeping visibility, improved ESG data capture, and increased productivity for our pipeline operators.

Migrating UPDM/PODS-7 w/APR Systems to Full Utility Network (UN) Implementations

Historically, transmission pipeline companies that implemented UPDM/PODS7 w/APR systems have stopped short of a full Utility Network (UN) solution for a couple of reasons. First, an integrated UN was unavailable. Secondly, the requirements to implement UN were too great. This presentation focuses on the methodologies to migrate UPDM/PODS-7/APR implementations to a full UN solution and help pipeline companies understand how a powerful network management solution is a viable solution now.
